Report: Syria accepts 242 as talks basis

By DAVID MAKOVSKY

Syria's state-sponsored newspaper Tishrin reportedly said yesterday that talks with Israel; could be renewed on the basis of UN Resolution 242, which according to the daily, "calls for trading land for peace,"

If this indeed reflects official

Syrian thinking, this would mark a change for Damascus. Until now, Syria's official position is that peace talks with Israel can only resume where they "left off" when halted almost a year ago with the Labor government

ISRAEL'Sh

Damascus interprets this to mean full Israeli withdrawal from the Golan Heights and a commitment of adherence to a non-paper" drafted but not signed in May 1995, which outlines the principles governing security arrangements.

Prime Minister Binyamia Netanyaha has rejected both conditions. He possesses a

September letter from former secretary of state Warren Christopher saying that the May 1995 "non-paper" is not legally binding and that the US remains committed to a letter drafted in 1975 by then-president Gerald Ford recognizing Israeli security concerns on the Golan:

If Syria pulls back from the condition that talks must resume where they "left off," hut instead Israel must accept UN Resolution 242 as applying to the Golan, it would give Netanyahu some room to maneuver 'No Israeli government has ever interpreted 242 to mandate full withdrawal on all fronts.

Moreover, Likud governmeots have accepted 242 as the basis for the overall 1991 Madrid neace conference, but have not recognized the resolu-tion's applicability to the Golan

Voice of Love and Peace at war with Reshet Bet

The Voice of Love and Peace, Ramallah's music and phone in radio station, is at war with Israel Radio's Channel 2 on the FM waveband.

Reshet Bet, as it is better known, says Love and Peace has been muscling into its waveband and uning out listeners to Israel's flaghip radio station. It started when P began broadcasts on 95.3

', interfering with Reshet Bet's adcasts on 95.5 FM. When Reshet Bet retaliated with a complaint to the Commnoications Ministry, VLP closed and then came back on 95 FM, which gave it a broadcasting radius of 75 kilo-

Reshet Bet followed with an attack on 95 FM and commandeered it last week, saying it has a monopoly on broadcasting within 500 kilohertz of 95.5. VLP retreated to 94.2 where, crowded in hy other stations, its reception is poor and its range is severely reduced.

The Oslo 2 agreement signed on September 28, 1995, says that the Palestinian Authority is permitted eight frequencies on the FM band which "will be assigned not later than six months from the signing of this agreement." None has been assigned yet.

"Whenever we try to speak to the Israeli communications ministry we are told there is no one in the office. They don't respond to lour letters," said PA Deputy Communications Minister Zuheir

Channel I backtracked over the weekend from its broad conspiracy charges in the so-called "Bar-On for Hebron" affair, when it admitted that Prime Mioister Binyamin Netanyahu himself was not involved.

Netanyahu, meanwhile, called for "a thorough and swift police investigation to get at the bottom of things and clear the air once and for all.

Shas leader Aryeh Deri, accused by Channel 1's Ayala Hasson of having hinged his support for the Hebron agreement on the appointment of Roni Bar-On as attorneygeneral, appeared Friday on Channel 2 to proclaim his innocence. He said it was impossible for him to work out a plea bargain at this stage of the lengthy legal proceedings against him, and the Hehron aspect of the Hasson charges literally put his life at risk.

Netanyahu told the cabioet Friday morning that he "hoped there would be a speedy, thorough, professional and impartial police investigation into this." He added that he "was astounded to hear the allegations. I do not even so much as imagine that anyone tried behind my hack to conduct such a maneuver. So far as I know this is utterly baseless.

Hasson said yesterday that the fact that Netanyahu is not a suspect in the affair does not reduce the credibility of her story. But Channel 1 quietly lowered its sights Friday from the prime minister to someone unnamed who might presumably have been working behind Netanyahu's back.

The assumption in the political arena is that Channel's 1 chief target right now is Prime Minister's Office Director-General Avigdor Lieberman.

Hasson, who appeared on the Friday evening Channel I weekly news magazine to review her story, stated that "it is important to stress that in this affair, Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu himself was not privy to the plea bargain Bar-On promised Deri." This message was underscored by featuring it in bold print across the screen, ostensibly as a move by the Israel Broadcasting Authority

Woman, 28, dies from flu

A 28-year-old Sharon-area woman died yesterday at Kfar Sava's Meir Hospital from flu complications.

The woman arrived in the emergency room on Wednesday night, was diagnosed with having the flu and sent home. On Friday night, she returned to the emergency room after taking a serious turn for the worse. She was found to be suffering from a heart infection, and transferred to the intensive care unit, where doctors tried to revive her. She died yesterday morning. Dr. Mario Stern, head of the hospital's department of alternative medicine, said flu is a viral illness and should not be treated with antibiotics. Those sick with the flu should rest and take medications to hring down fever.

Arafat: No new PLO charter until Israel has a constitution

By JON IMMANUEL and ELDAD BECK

The Palestinians do not intend to amend the PLO charter as long as Israel does not adopt a constitution, Palestinian Authority Chairman Yasser Arafat said in interviews published in Paris over the weekend. Arafai also said the Oslo agreements do not give Israel the right to develop settle-ments in the territories and warned that if the Israeli government decides to build new settlements or to extend existing settlements, the Palestinians "will not stay pas-

The whole world will not stand idle in from of such a violation of the agreements,"

According to Israeli officials, Arafat committed in the fr mework of the Hebron agreement to cancel the charter's articles calling for the destruction of Israel. However, in interviews given to two French dailies. Le Monde and Liberation, published over the weekend, Arafat declared: "We have already canceled the articles that were in contradiction to the Oslo agreements. We have fulfilled our charter. As far as I know, the Israelis do not have a constitution. When they will have one, we will do the same."

Arafat also accused Israel of violating "at least" 34 articles of the Oslo Agreements, including the release of Palestinian prisoners detained in Israeli jails and allowing free movement between the Gaza Strip and the West Bank. Arafat also demanded the release of Sheikh Ahmed Yassin, spiritual leader of the Hamas movement.

Arafat returned to Hebron on Friday after making his maiden visit there last week. The PA leader held his first cabinet meeting in the city, and appointed an Islamic leader identified with Hamas to the cabinet.

The appointment of Talal Sidr, head of the Islamic Youth Movement in Hebron, to the post of minister of youth was his second ministerial appointment of a notable identified with Hamas. Imad Falouji, who once headed the Islamic Society in Gaza, is a minister without portfolio.

15th day of Ramadan, in 1994. It was the first big test of security arrangements in Hebron and free passage between H-1 under Palestinian Authority control and H-2 under the IDF, where the cave is located. Vehicles were prevented from entering the area, Palestinians complained.

While traffic moved slowly across the security checkpost between H-1 and H-2, there were also stringent security checks at the gate to the mosque and many of the thousands who tried to enter were kept out. They prayed on mats outside. Later there were angry scenes as worshipers passed near the Avraham Avinu quarter, but the crowds dispersed.

At the Bethlehem-Jerusalem checkpoint near Gilo, people streamed across, mostly villagers in traditional garb, to get to prayers at Al-Aksa Mosque and when that proved too slow, others bypassed the checkpoint and entered Jerusalem via footpaths, beaten back in some cases by policemen

David Bar-Illan, the prime minister's senior policy advisor, addresses some 200 'Jerusalem Post' readers at ZOA House in Tel Aviv on Friday.

Bar-Illan: Media must be held accountable

By MICHAL YUDELMAN

The printe minister's senior policy adviser David Bar-Illan said democracy will have to find checks and balances for the media to prevent it from publishing inaccurate reports or even libel.

Speaking to a gathering of Jerusalem Post readers at ZOA House in Tel Aviv on Friday, Bar-Illan, former editor of The Jerusalem Post, referred to Channel 1's report about the Bar-On-Hebron affair saying. "I really don't know the details, it's not my bailiwick, but it seems like a perfectly fabricated kind of accusation and charge against the prime minister, Arych Deri and the man who was nominated attorney-general [Roni Bar-On] ... again, a scandal against which there's practically no defense."

Bar-Illan blasted the media for the injustice it inflicts, noting that "there is no recourse to something printed, even if it's untrue or libelous." He noted that even when you try to do something about it. "It means you spend the next two or three years of your life doing nothing else and by the time you get a retraction from the court, if you do, nobody will remember what you're talking about."

He added that "so many people are deterred from joining governments because of this kind of constant barrage they are subjected to by the press."

Bar-Illan denied, in answer to a question. that he was floating the idea of a Palestinian state for the prime minister and admitted that he had made a mistake in discussing the

"I object to the establishment of a Palestinian state and believe it should be prevented at all costs," he said. "What I did, which was a big mistake, was to try to discuss a concept in political science with journalists, who obviously want a black-and-white answer rather than any kind of subtlety of this kind,"

Both the Tel Aviv and Jerusalem Journalists Associations sharply denounced Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu's onslaught on the media in general and on Channel I in particular. Tel Aviv Association director Razi Gutherntan expressed regret that Netanyahu is inflaming hostility towards the media with his repeated threats to "take care of it" and his attacks on journalists.

"It's deplorable to blame everything on the media and brand the media as responsible for all the ills and shortcomings of the government, even when the media reveals alleged criminal acts of senior government figures," Gutherman said. The prime minister should respect the freedom of the press and the public's right to know, even when certain exposures are not convenient to the government, he

Chairman of the Jerusalem association, Elisha Spiegelman, wrote in a letter to the prime minister that as long as there is no proof to his charges against the media, it is his duty as the minister in charge of the IBA, to protect the IBA's professional dignity and the conditions it needs to carry out

US report urges PA to do more to fight terror

By HILLEL KUTTLER

WASHINGTON - The PLO and the PA are deepening security cooperation with Israel, but need to do more in fighting terrorism and respecting the legal process, the Clinton administration has concluded.

The just-reached Hebron accord "erected a solid foundation" for continued Israeli-Palestinian reconciliation, and demonstrated that the PA "is committed to good faith negotiations with Israel," a semiannual report submitted to Congress on Thursday states.

The report is mandated by legislation, including the 1995 Middle East Peace Facilitation Act, meant to track PLO compliance with its obligations to Israel.

It stated that the PA has taken "numerous concrete measures" to prevent terrorist attacks and found that the PLO and the PA "have on the whole - taken steps to carry out their commitments and otherwise taken the steps called for in MEPFA."

that the PLO and the PA "can increase their efforts to carry out a systematic and sustained campaign to root out and preempt terror and to apprehend, detain and prosecute those responsible for these kinds of activities."

While Palestinian protests against September's Hasmonean Tunnel opening led to "sponta-neous acts of violence" and gun battles, there is "no evidence to support charges that the PA intended to use its security forces to confront or fire upon Israeli forces," it

"We consider it more likely that there was a breakdown of the PA's command and control during the confrontation and that these actions did not reflect an official policy of the PLO or the PA."

The report found "no information" that any PLO wing under PA chairman Yasser Arafat's control was involved in terrorism and "no evidence" to support reports that the PA is acquiring anti-tank and anti-aircraft missiles. PA officials have told their US counterparts that personal weapons would be registered beginning January 1 and that on February 1. Palestinian police would start confiscating those weapons that go unlicensed, the report stated.

They also assured the US that the chain of command is being tightened to prevent a recurrence of the September gunfights.

The report was concluded during the US peace process team's stay in the region in December and January to bring the Hebron nego-tiations to closure, senior administration officials said.

It contains a six-page annex listing US funding for Palestinian democracy-building and infrascholarships, fellowships and exchange programs. The details were provided "to be responsive" to questions from Capitol Hill about where the funds were going. an official said.

Under terms of the US laws, the continuation of American diplomatic contacts with the PLO and aid to the PA, and the presence of a PLO office here, is contingent on the president certifying that the organization's commitments are

The president now has 30 days to weigh any input from Congress and decide whether to certify the PLO's compliance. He has certified all previous reports.

"Lady, you may topple the gov-emment," handed Hasson a bouquet for her "scoop" and a pair of handcuffs, in case the story proves Halaby said before broadcasting it, he checked and double-checked Hasson's story that Shas MK Arve Deri conditioned Shas's support for the Hebron agreement on a plea bargain in his case, which the new attorney-general was to deliver. He said he even spoke to some of her sources, including Deri. who told him he had sabotaged the appointment of attorney Dan Avi-Yitzhak for attorney-general.

Halaby said he had "evidence which could be heard" to substantiate the report, but would not say what it was. He said Channel 1 would give the police all the help it could, but would not reveal sources.

Halaby dismissed Netanyahu's accusations that Channel I is "run by my political opponents" and his demand that "the media act with more responsibility and in a more professional manner."

Halaby pointed out that in a meeting with Netanyahu three weeks ago the prime minister told him "you are the most reliable and fairest medium in the country."

"Then a week ago in a telephone call Netanyahu told me: 'You are decent and professional people," he said.

Last Wednesday, in the interview with Dan Semama and Ehud Ya'ari. Netanyahu attacked the media, but immediately excluded Channel 1.

"So to say now that we are his political opponents and don't rec-ognize the results of the elections is hardly credible. We have no political rivalry with the prime minister. We are doing our job professionally and will continue to do so fearlessly." Halaby said.

Report: US congressmen warned Mubarak he could lose US aid

By DAVID MAKOVSKY

Two key congressmen were among the American lawmakers who recently conveyed to Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak that the perception that Egypt was stiffening Palestinian demands and was not a constructive force in the Hebron negotiations could potentially jeopardize the $2.4 billion Egypt receives in annual US assistance, according to the forthcoming issue of US News and World Report,

The two key members were Sen. Mitch McConnell, the Rentucky Republican who chairs the Appropriations Committee's subcommittee that deals with foreign aid, and his House counterpan, Rep. Sonny Callahan, a Republican from Alabama. According to US News, the two spoke to Mubarak in what were described as "moderate tones and not a threat." Yet, they made clear that if the impression continues that "Egypt is not constructive," this would undermine needed congressional support for maintaining current aid levels. Clinton administration officials and their Israeli counterparts voiced exasperation with Egypt during the Hebron talks, noting the time Mubarak appeared on Egyptian television to declare that he would oppose certain Israeli-Palestinian compro-

Members of Congress who were visiting the region during the final days of the Hebron negoliations noted that it was Jordan's King Hussein and not Mubarak who sought compromise between Palestinian and Israeli positions.

Albright has no plans to visit region soon

By HILLEL KUTTLER

WASHINGTON - In her first public comments on the peace process since taking office. Madeleine Albright indicated Friday that she is optimistic but has to plans to visit the region now. The new secretary of state also said that she supports the administration's so-called dual containment policy against Iran and Iraq. "I feel a lot better about the situation than I did before Dennis Ross came back from his very successful negotiations over Hebron," Albright told reporters at the State Department, referring to the US's special Middle East coordinator. "I believe it is important for the secretary of state to be involved in the Middle East peace process and I will make my judgments about when to travel to the area based upon how the situation evolves and on advice from Dennis."

She said that achieving a comprehensive peace will be a top priority" for President Clinton and for her, echoing a statement she made at her Senate confirmation hearing two weeks ago.

Albright said she classifies countries in four ways, and that Iran and Iraq fall into the category of "rogue" states. "I support the policy," she said

Albanians attack minister, torch towns

By LLAZAR SEMIN

LUSHNJE (Reuter) - Furious Albanian protesters, desperate at losing all their money in crumbling investment schemes, yesterday attacked a senior minister and set buildings ablaze as protests grew around the Balkan Foreign Minister Tritan Shehu, chairman of the ruling right-wing Democratic Party, was set upon by an angry crowd in the southern town of Lushnje and bit by a hard object which left his face covered in blood, witnesses said.

The minister, a close associate of President Sali Berisha, fled the crowd and locked himself in the locker room of the town soccer stadium with his bodyguards and plain-clothes policemen.

A government helicopter sent to rescue him was left hovering over the soccer pitch as protesters in the poor rural area prevented it from

"Sbehu was attacked...when they recognized him. He must have been hit by a stone or hard object because bis face is covered with blood," the witness

The minister, trying to calm the situation through personal intervention, obviously mis-read the mood of the crowd, which moved in on him as soon as he was recognized.

Down with Berisha!", "We want our money back!" the crowd shouted as they gathered earlier in the downtown Lushnie.

In the town of Berat, 40 km south of Lushnje, demonstrators set fire to buildings in downtown. Albanian television said.

A resident told Reuters by telephone that the town hall, prefecture and police station were

"I am sorry for the policemen. They are beating them up. They have also taken the police chief hostage," a woman who lived near the police station said.

The US Embassy in Tirana advised US citizens to exercise caution if traveling around Albania and to stay away from crowds as the Interior Ministry ordered the cancellation of soccer matches to stop further potential trouble.

The violence marked a serious escalation of two weeks of protests around the impoverished country where Albanians are angry they may have been duped into pouring their life savings into dubious pyramid investment

Police used batons to break up the biggest demonstration in the capital, Tirana, last Sunday but officers in the latest protests appeared powerless to restore order. Opposition parties, seeing a chance to stir political change, have called a further protest in Tirana today. Police chiefs sent truckloads of reinforcements to Lushnje on Friday night after residents set the town hall alight. But they failed to bring the protesters to heel, instead cowering behind vehicles as they came under a hail of stones. About 30 demonstrators were arrested on Friday and police said 29 officers were hurt. There were no immediate figures on any injuries to protesters.

Albanians, Europe's poorest people, have reacted fiercely to the prospect of losing investments which many of them made after selling homes, farms, livestock and other belongings.

In eastern town of Pogradec, two women stripped themselves naked in public this week in a symbolic act of protest to show they had been left with nothing, Albanian newspapers reported.

HONG KONG (Reuter) - A fire in a karaoke club in Hong Kong yesterday killed 15 people and police said it may have been caused by a petrol bomb.

The said the deaths were being investigated as murder.

Most of the casualties in the blaze were young people, with the dead aged 16 to 42. Thirteen injured were being treated in hospital and two were on the critical list. Police said the inferno that gut-

Police investigators were treating the case as arson and homicide, government radio said. There have been suggestions that someone had seen a petrol bomb being thrown but there is no further information to confirm that," police superintendent Victor Lo told the radio.

Lo said his office would also examine reports from witnesses that the fire was caused by rival gangs vying for turf in the protection business in the territory's nightlife district.

He appealed to wimesses to come forward. The police anti-triad bureau was called in to help investigations.

The fatalities included five men and 10 women. Hospital sources said it was not known if any non-Hong Kong nationals were among them as not all the bodies had yet been identified.

The blaze raced through the Top One karaoke bar in the Tsimshatsui district of Hong Kong's Kowloon peninsula shortly before dawn and took firefighters more than an hour to quell. There were about 100 people in the building at the time.

The club had been checked by fire safety professionals, the owning company told a news conference.

Hong Kong fire chief Peter Cheung said the unusually rapid spread of the fire and voluminous clouds of smoke were suspicious.

"The fire spread so rapidly from the staircase to the second floor that it could mean there was some fuel to help the fire," Cheung said.

James To of the Democratic Party chairman of the Horne Kong Party, chairman of the Hong Kong Legislative Council's security panel, expressed grave concerns about safety at karaoke clubs.

More killed in Algeria

From Post news agencies

PARIS - Suspected Moslem rebels killed up to 59 people in more massacres in hamlets near Algiers, an Algerian newspaper said yesterday, hours after President Liamine Zeroual spoke of "unequaled terror" in the country.

Algeria's main independent dailies all reported continued killings in the five-year-old conflict. Le Matin said more than 250 people had now been killed in the past two weeks.

Without giving details of the slaughter or new steps to stop it, Zeroual told the nation in a televised address on Friday night: "Innocent citizens, of all categories, are victims each day of a blind terrorism never equalled in other times or other places."

Le Matin, quoting villagers, said: "Fifty-nine have been assassinated during this weekend in the center of the country, mostly in Berroughia and in douars (villages) of Benramdane, Saouala and Baraki (near Zeroual's speech, in which he blamed foreign cir-

Soncino Classics Collection.
The Soncino Bible, Babylonian
Tolmud, Midrosh Rabba and the Tohar o CD-ROM in Hebrew and Tolmua, in the Down in Hebrew and English, for oll oges, produced by the Down Corporation in Chicago, represented in Israel by Alon Rosenbaum, 7511 King David Street, Efrat, $589 or the shekel equivalent.

And the same of th Ronng: Four stars out of five ome religions like to keep their boly texts secret, fully revealed only to the elite of their spiritual leadership. Judaism, bowever, from Moses on down, believed in spreading the word, making its study by the common people an integral part of their daily life. Spread orally for generations, Jewish texts were then written down as scrolls and then pur into type. Now it is digitized, not only to preserve every letter forever, but also to make possible speedy searches and analyses.

This monomental disk (with three 3.5-inch installation diskettes) contains text that in printed form would cover many bookshelves, plus a valuable English translation.

The program is very versatile, letting users examine texts in both languages, save material for printing out, conduct hypertext searching of words or phrases using Boolean logic, and even display two "panes" simultaneously from the same book.

It would be very useful for rabbis, yeshiva high-school students and other scholars who need both languages. The English translation of the Bible is decades old and somewhal old fashioned, using "thee," "thou" and "henceforth." This might turn off modern young people, but is not a serious flaw. The translation of the Midrash Rabba is even older, but that of the Zohar was previously published by Soncino in a print edition in

Users looking for contemporary commentators or even those from a few hundred years ago will not find them here, but if they want to do textual research, this program just what they need. The inclusion of the kabbalistic work the Zohar is rather surprising, as it is not widely read and studied by the observant public at large. Still, there is certainly no harm in it being included.

The price is steep for a CD-ROM, although a bargain when compared to the cost of purchasing the equivalent volumes in print. If one could make do only with Hebrew, Bar-Ilan University's disk with a compendium of some 500 volumes, including a large amount of Responsa literature, costs somewbat more; Bar-Ilan's "Bar Mitzva Edioon" CD-ROM containing the Bible, Talmud, Midrash Rabba and various commentaries has no English but is sold in the US for a mere $49.

'Soncino's Classic Collection' contains text that would cover many bookshelves in printed form.

Davka Corp. must decide if it wants this product to reach a wide market, if so, the price will have to be reduced; The Jerusolem Post on CD-ROM, for example, used to cost hundreds of dollars and attract a limited audience; now costing only NIS 225, it has become a research tool and database used around the world.

Hashomronim Samaritans), o CD-ROM in Hebrew and English for oll oges, produced by Ness Multimedia ond distributed by Hed Artzi Multimedia, NIS 169

Rating: four stars out of five Any minority group would be bonored to have a CD-ROM like this explain to the rest of the world their history, culture, customs and beliefs. How much more gratifying is a disk on the Samaritans, an obscure, ancient people that in the fourth century CE oumbered one million souls, were nearly wiped out by persecution and dwindleddown to 146 at the beginning of this century. Today they have bounced back to 600 members, half of them living on Mr. Gerizim and nearby Nablus in Samaria and the rest in Holon.

The Samaritan community received a special budget from the Education Ministry and the Holon Municipality to produce this tasteful multimedia program to tell their story and preserve it for generations. It has no games or gimmicks; it is comprised of beautiful still photographs in color and blackand-white, video films, sound recordings and a minimum of text.

The community, best known perhaps for their Samaritan Pessah sacrifices on Mr. Gerizim each spring, deny scriptural sources that link them with oon-Jewish residents of the Fertile Crescent brought by the king of Assyria to Samaria. They regard themselves as descendants of the Israelite Tribes of Ephraim, Menashe and

The disk has an opening menu with a motif of stones. The user may click on any of four icons to learn about the Samaritan religion, history, customs and language. It gives much credit to the Knesset for establishing, in 1949, a Law of Return for Samaritans as well as Jews, and to President Yitzhak Ben-Zvi, who "adopted" them and gave them acove support. The program also praises the Holon Municipality for setting aside land for a Samaritan neighborhood, and to Jordan's King Hussein, who (before the Six Day War) "purchased Mt. Gerizim from the Moslem Wakf and restored it to the Samaritans." The disk gives much information on the Samaritan alphabet, which - like the Hebrew alef-bet bas 22 characters and is "based on the ancient Hebrew alphabet" but has a different pronunciation. Much Samaritan literature was lost during waves of persecution (such as by the Greeks and Romans, who tried to force them to worship idols).

In 1990 the Samaritan Bible. script and prayerbook were computerized to ensure preservation forever. Among the tenets of the religion are the belief in Moses as the sole prophet and in the literal text of the Torah: Mt. Gerizim is the Samaritans' boliest place, with pilgrimages three omes a year, and all prayer facing towards it.

You will know much more about the Samaritans after studying the disk, which is geared to anyone who's curious about the community. The video films are a bit shaky, as if taken by an amateur, but they nevertheless show scenes few Israelis have seen and complement the often-sturning photographs.
The only odd thing is that the dates are given as AD (referring to Jesus) rather than the conventional CE used by Jews, to whom the Samaritans claim to be related.

Computer anxiety: A 21st-century condition

By JUDY SIEGEL-ITZKOVICH

't's amazing how a box made of plastic, metal, silicon and glass - which is disarmed merely hy pulling out the plug can send such fear through the hearts of man. At the close of the 20th century, computer anxiety is a widespread condition - affecting members of both sexes and people of all ages equally, even those who have logged a lot of keyboard

Yoni Noked, a Petah Tikva consultant, recently completed his master's thesis on the subject at Tel Aviv University's School for Business Administration. After conducting an in-depth survey of 141 Tel Aviv municipal workers, from a deputy mayor 10 ordinary clerks, Noked concluded that organizations must pay constant attention to staffers' needs and reactions to their computers.

A small percentage of people required to use computers are so afraid of them that they can't funcoon properly, says Noked, who was previously an organizational adviser to Tel Aviv's city manager and recently addressed a meeting of the Israel Information Technology Association (ILA) on this subject.

Anxiety is not unusual among people doing daily battle with computers on the job. "This occurs at each stage of the cycle:

information system, the period of regular use, and when the system no longer suits its purpose and has to be replaced," Noked explains.

"All previous research deali only with workers' nervousness when computer systems were introduced into the workplace, but didn't go beyond that." In fact, the level of anxiety before the installation actually dropped when staffers started working with their computers, only 10 increase later.

While it's logical for employees to be anxious whenever something new is introduced - as 80 years ago when factory workers were first confronted by the assembly line - Noked says computers are a special category in themselves. Even veteran users are unnerved when a new operating system or programs are unveiled. They have to learn new commands and utiliies, some of which they will never use. Then there are computer 'vinuses' files are lost and the computer system 'falls' at inconvenient moments. All of these can cause anxiety." The idea that introducing a computer system leads to mass dismissals is unfounded in most cases, but it too causes anxi-

Older men who regarded typing as "women's work" may regard using a keyboard as a lower-status job. "All this changes their status and self-image and can mix everything up," Noked notes. "All the existing concepts of bow the organization works, how to obtain power and get compensation for one's work are confused."

When a new computer system is introduced, Noked advises that managers not be taught in the same class as underlings: "They won't like to be exposed as making mistakes and being unable to figure things out immediately."

The study - in which he examined 41 situations that may arise while working with information systems - showed that age is not a factor in learning to operate the digital machines. Contrary to common opinion, young people don't necessarily do better than older ones. There is also no difference in the abilities of men and women, he insists. "Previous studies testing sex differences related to computer work compared women doing simple keyboard work with men doing spread-sheets. This skewed the samples." Noked advises companies to be attenuive to their workers, as anything but a smooth transition to computers or new systems will gum up the works. Before new technology is introduced, anonymous surveys of staffers should be conducted. Respondents must not be identified by name, or employees will not give honest answers, making the entire exercise useless. By analyzing results, the employer will gain real insight into what's bothering the workers and what can be done to imprave or adapt the systems, he says. Give staffers the skills they need to do their jobs and professional support whenever its needed. "The input should condinue from implementa-

Golan wind farm survives economic storm

By Post Science Reporter

To one who has driven up to Mt. Hermon on the Golan Heights could fail to be fashill. These form the Assania Wind Farm, which was built in 1992.

The project, supported by the then-Ministry of Energy and Infrastructure (now called the Ministry of National Infrastructure), had troubles in the beginning, but since the initial running-in period ending in June 1994, the 10 generators have been producing power very efficiently.

According to the winter issue of Israel Energy News, published quarterly by the ministry, the Assania Project survived two major worldwide economic trends unfavorable to wind power: the decline of electricity rates, and privatization policies (which reduced state interference in or subsidy of wind power). The 10-turbine wind farm had to solve mechanical and electrical problems during its first years of operation, but it has achieved its goal of cost effectiveness. For example, in June 1996, it produced 896,560 kilowatts of electricity. The author notes that most of the potential wind energy sites in Israel are inferior in comparison to Golan sites. They include parts of the Negev, but these are either nature reserves, military zones, or a combination of both. Political decisions may decide the future of Assania and the potential of other possible locations.

If wind farms are built elsewhere, "it may be expected that cost effectiveness will require in most cases [the use of] most advanced equip-

Finger blood samples to replace test tubes

By Post Health Reporter

Indergoing laboratory tests to diagnose disease will become easier in the next few years. New technologies are being devised that will make it possible to take a few drops of blood from the finger instead of test tubes-full from the arm - to determine a large quantity of blood components: These developments were recently discussed at the Second Geleris Family Syroposium on Laboratory Medicine at the Technion's Rappaport Faculty of Medicine in Haifa.

BY TAXI, BACK TO LIFE

The life of a 66-year-old Haifa resident was saved recently when a quick-thinking taxi driver who was bringing him home from a vacation in Jerusalem rushed him to Rambam Hospital when his passenger suffered cardiac arrest. The man, Moshe Kroviarsky of Bat Galim, was accompanied by his wife. They took a taxi at Haifa's central bus station, and within minutes he lost consciousness. The driver hurried to the hospital's emergency room, and doctors ran out to perform cardiopulmonary resuscitation while he was still in the taxi. > GOLD-PLATED ORTHODONTICS As most parents know, orthodonuc work is so expensive, you might need a second mortgage to get it done for all your children who need it. But, gold-plated braces? They're not more expensive than the conventional silver-colored type, but teenage girls who are very concerned about their looks and bate the idea of braces on their teeth are apparently attracted to the idea. A Jerusalem dentist, S.S., claims credit for the idea, but won't profit from it. Four years ago, attending the Jacob Javits Center annual dental meeting in New York - attended by 30,000 professionals - Dr. S.S. spoke from the podium to suggest that braces be offered in gold-plated nickel-titanium so teenage girls would not refuse to wear them. It took a bit of time for an orthodonlics-supply company to adopt the idea, but now a US firm, Masel, has put such equipment in its latest catalog. The Bar-On affair

RIME Minister Binyamin Netanyahu's request to call for an immediate and thorough police investigation into the Bar-On affair is both correct and timely. If the accusation that Shas leader MK Aryeh Deri supported the appointment of Roni Bar-On as attorneygeneral and offered Shas's support for the Hebron agreement in return for Bar-On agreeing to a plea-bargain deal is true, then Israel's governmental system has plummeted to disgraceful and unprecedented depths of political machinations. On the other hand, if, as the prime minister insists, there is no truth to Channel 1's report, then the Israel Broadcasting Authority has hit a new low in journalistic Netanyahu has left no room for ambiguity in his denials of Ayala Hasson's report, calling it "entirely baseless, absolute gibberish." One hopes that a police investigation will succeed in quickly proving the prime minister correct. Otherwise, the blow to the rule of law will be a knock-out. It is bad enough that Deri, a former interior minister, is standing trial on charges of, among other things, accepting bribes; for the Prime Minister's Office to seek ways to ensure he escapes facing the due judicial process is tantamount to the dismembering of the whole judicial system.

According to Hasson's allegations, once the government's favored candidate for the position of attorncy-general, Dan Avi-Yitzhak, fell through because of Deri's objections - Avi-Yitzhak is leading Deri's defense at the Jerusalem District Court and Deri did not want to lose him - Bar-On's name was proposed for the post. Hasson reported that Likud activist David Appel suggested the appointment of Bar-On and that Bar-On and Deri agreed on Shas's support for Bar-On and the Hebron agreement in return for Bar-On agreeing to a plea-bargain for Deri, in which Deri would plead guilty to a misdemeanor charge. Found guilty only of a misdemeanor. Deri would be eligible to return to the cabinet table.

While Deri, Bar-On and Appel have all been quick to deny Hassoo's report in the clearest and most categorical of terms, Hasson's revelations have already raised some contradictions in the government's original version concerning the mechanics of Bar-On's appointment. In the first stage of the Bar-On affair, when the short-lived appointment was attacked solely on the grounds of Bar-On's unsuitability for the post - even Likud ministers opposed Bar-On's candidacy, claiming he was only chosen because of bis political affiliation and that he lacked the required legal standing - Justice Minister Tzahi Hanegbi, in a statement to the High Court on January 12, said he had proposed Bar-On's appointment to the prime minister and that Netanyahu approved it. On Thursday, however. Hanegbi changed his version and said that Bar-Oo's candidacy was suggested by the Prime Minister's Office, and he supported the choice. But compared to the major allegation in the Channel 1 report, this inconsistency is a trifling matter. The question now is whether a police investigation will succeed in quickly answering the more serious charge of whether Appel cooked up Bar-On's appointment, and Bar-On made a deal with Deri. The investigation promises to be problematic as Hasson has made it clear she will claim journalistic immunity and refuse to reveal her sources. Although Israel has no law granting such immunity, former Supreme Court president Meir Shanigar has ruled that such immunity is a tradition in a democratic society and should be respected, except when a court orders differently. Given the importance of journalistic work in a democratic society, which to some extent is based on the knowledge that facts given to a journalist in confidence will remain in confidence, one hopes the police will succeed in determining the truth behind Hassoo's report without having to resort to a court order lifting her journalistic immunity,

Indeed, this whole affair is an investigation into the workings of both government and the press. While Hasson has charged the government with gross breach of trust, the prime minister has oot been slow to counter, charging Israel Television with political bias. As Netanyahu said on Thursday night, "We have a free press in only relative terms. It is run by political opponents. Channel 1 opposed me before the elections and after the elections, and it is hard for them to adjust to the results."

While most politicians feel that the press is against them - and given the nature of the often adversarial relationship between politicians and journalists this is hardly surprising - the Likud has been particularly critical of the treatment it has received at the hands of the media, especially that of state-run television and radio. Since assuming office, this government has made no secret of its dissatisfaction with the present heads of the Israel Broadcasting Authority or of its desire to privatize the body.

Given this state of affairs, one would assume the IBA's news department did not rush to air Hasson's story, but checked it thoroughly to make sure it would stand up to the most stringent scrutiny. So far, the report has remained unsourced, and all the major figures have denied the allegations made against it. Just as the government has to clear itself immediately and absolutely of the charges leveled against it if it is to maintain the public's confidence, so too does the IBA have to prove beyond doubt that it acted correctly in running the story. If the report is found to be unsubstantiated, then the most severe steps should be taken against the journalists responsible.

State Attorney Edna Arbel should not hesitate today in ordering the police to open an investigation into the affair, the rule of law and public confidence in the government demand it.

ILEG 97 Our liberal elite ity of this nation.

The activities of the present government are continually being thwarted by those who arrogate to themselves the sobriquet of the nation's elite. Some even boast of it.

This elite is still unreconciled to the fact that last May the ungrateful proles threw out the regime that was good for them and chose this "reactionary" government.

But why quotation marks as though it were a pejorative? The left wing in the US and, by apishness in Israel now, adopted the term "liberal" because it sounded nice.

The left at the same time labeled their opponents "reactionaries," perhaps because of its Louis Seize aura. But if actions are bad, it is good to seek to reverse them, to be reactionary. For its part, liberal has become libertine, and that is a bad thing.

Our liberal elite are not prepared to wait out the four years for a chance to catch the pendulum swinging their way. They use all means, some fair but mostly foul, to sabotage the functioning of the elected government.

The leftist liberals boast that the media are on their side. True democrats and lovers of liberty - that is, real liberals - would lament that fact. They would want a clear-minded and objective selection and presentation of news. But prejudice and poison are legitimate, it seems, when the interest served is "liberal."

The scribblers and chatterers who dominate the press and broadcasting exhibit their lack of honesty in their choice of interviewees and by the way they grill those on the right, while indulging with leading questions those of their own, leftist, persuasion. Most glaring was the recent character assassination, the abusive mud-slinging at Roni Bar-On, the cabinct-appointed attorney-general. I am not suggesting Bar-On was the best available candidate for the post, or that it was proper for the prime minister, egged on by the justice minister, to have forced the choice through the cabinet.

But the media bloodhounds tore into Bar-On not because he lacked qualification - he had not been tested - but solely because he had had the audacity to use his spare time to further the interests of the country's most popularly supported football club, and those of the political party held by some to be populist. Populist, not elitist.

It would be a refreshing change, and could provide a long-needed shakeup of the legal system, were the attorney-general to be more associated with the common folk than with distant academe or the elevated bench.

N. DAVID GROSS

THE Supreme Court, too, could do with something of the common touch, to come a little closer to the man in the street.

The US Supreme Court used to be known as "those nine old men," because it was felt they were out of touch with the spirit of New Deal America.

Israel's High Court of Justice. basking in its shiny new temole in the Kirya, has a number of hyper-active middle-aged men who likewise are out of touch with the spirit of Israel.

The bench includes not a single member of the vast sections of the population that hail from Islamic lands, nor an immigrant from the former Soviet Union, large as is the contribution of both these groups to the social and economic fabric of the country.

And wby is there no Arab among the justices? Which of the 14 distinguished jurists can expect properly to understand the feelngs, rationale and mores of this 20 percent of the nation of Israel? The function of the High Court

Its members use all means, some fair but mostly foul, to sabotage the functioning of the elected government is to ensure that the government, in its pursuit of the common welfare, as it sees it, does not, wittingly or otherwise, trample on the rights of individuals or groups of individuals.

The practice used to be that a petitioner approaching the High Court had to show that he persooally was harmed by the governmental action from which he sought protection or redress.

This has gone by the board. Today, any do-gooder, any malcontent, any nudnik may petition the court to annul any action of the government or its agents he does not like. And as often as not, the court will hear the petition and perhaps cancel a decision of the dulyappointed and legitimate rulers of the land because the justices, sometimes only a majority of them, feel that decision does oot accord with their weltanschauung. This weltanschauung, I venture to suggest, is not that of the major-

A recent, glaring, example was the court's overthrowing of a long-considered decision of the Film Censorship Board that a certain foreign film be allowed distribuion in Israel only if certain scenes it held to be pomographic were excised. The board was exercising its lawful and mandated function of protecting the public from pornography in the einema. A disgruntled minority of the board, oot satisfied with repeated rejections of its stand that the film not be cut, petitioned the High Court.

Two of the three justices who heard the petition ruled that the offending scenes were part of an artistic whole and granted the petition, almost in full, using the argument of freedom of expression. The justices said they had consulted experts (where, by the way, does one find experts in pornography - in the yellow pages, or the blue?). Like the Jew who runs with his question from rabbi to rabbl until he finds one who gives bim the answer he wants, two justices said they favored the view of the minority of these experts, the view that clashed with that of the majority of the censorship board.

There is something wrong when two justices, however learned, can overrule - in a matter of taste, not law - a public body representing broad sections of the nation. Here indeed we have government not by the people, but by an elite. The left claims, with considerable justification, that the schoolteachers are on their side. They are praised for having nixed the education minister's efforts to get them to impregnate their instruction with commonly accepted values.

What a preposterous idea! To let Israeli children know there is more to schooling than job training and surviving in the materialistic jungle outside, and that a nation's heritage is a precious thing.

The teachers' leaders showed no sucb antagonism to the previous minister's counter-educational decision that matriculation subjects be selected by lottery. That apparently is a value oor children's educators can live with.

Most ominous is a boast on the left that the IDF senior command is part of the nation's elite that holds political views at variance with those of the current government. Heaven forbid that one day such officers should decide to act on these views and thwart the will of the people.

INTERNECINE STRUGGLE

Sir, - As a fairly new reader of The Jerusalem Post, I am impressed by the manner in which the Post opens its opinion pages to all shades of opinion on the topics the place decorated with swasukas touching our lives. That is why I on the walls and on makeshift cannot understand why an inordinate amount of space has been devoted to a controversy among several American Jews concerning who is an appropriate personage to address the annual meeting of one of their organizations.

I believe that most of your readers are not interested in an internecine struggle at the higher levels of American Jewish macherdom. CROSSING THE ROAD

Sir. - I read of an official intention to give elderly people courses of instruction on how to cross the road. Surely this is the ultimate in transference of guilt to the vic-tims. Many of the elderly would hardly be alive if they were not already highly proficient in this skill; unfortunately, some of them just can't run fast enough to escape murderous drivers.

Those in real need of instruction - not so much in the rules as in the necessity to take some notice of them - are Israeli schoolchildren, whose habit of strolling onto pedestrian crossings without looking left or right is widespread. I am told officially that they receive adequate instruction at school; but they seem to inherit the characteristic attitude that the rules are for others.

We must use our brains Down Under'

By GREER FAY CASHMAN

Te're making an arrangement with the from leaving the country," said The state of the s Gurion Meltzer, chairman of the Israel-Australia Chamber of

Meltzer wasn't talking about some crook who'd conoed members of the chamber into shady investments. The remark, made in jest a month ago at a chamber luncbeon, was Melizer's supreme compliment to Australian Ambassador Peter Rogers, who is winding up his tour of duty in West of the second seco More than any of his predecessors, Rogers, 50, has devoted himself to promoting economic and trade relations between Israel and Anstralia. This makes him an extremely popular figure with the local business community.

Rogers doesn't perceive himself as doing anything out of the ordinary. "My job is to pursue and promote Australian interests," he said in an interview with The Jerusalem Post. The key Australian interest is to interlink with the world economically, so the valuable thing for me to do is to see what is happening here and to promote the link.
"Israel is a country that has always had to rely on brainpower in its dealings with the world; we haven't," says Rogers with dis-arming candor. "But the message has been brought home to us that if Australia is to go forward into the next century, we must apply more brainpower."

His healthy respect for Israel's cerebral talents has been a motivating force in his attempts to boost trade relations which currently stand at around $157 million per annum on a three-to-one ratio in Israel's favor. In fact 1995/96 was the first year in which Australia's exports to Israel reached a nine-digit figure, coming to just over $39m., with traditional primary commodities such as coal and wool still very much in the lead. Coal for instance, accounts for around $16m. of Australian exports to Israel, But Australia is also a source of sophisticated manufactore asserts Rogers, citing an $12m. deal concluded between the Israel Electric Corporation and Transfield, an Australian company producing light poles and high-voltage power lines.

On the other side of the coin, Australia provides ready access for Israeli companies to markets in Southeast Asia and the Pacific rim. Teledata, for instance, has set up a manufacturing base in Australia and is selling telecommunications equipment to Indonesia. By using Australia as its regional headquarters, Teledata has overcome the political complications which all Israeb companies have with some of the countries in the region.

WHILE ROGERS can talk for hours about potential business between the two countries, he readily admits that on a political level, Australia's role in the Middle East can be nothing more than modest.

"It would be misleading to suggest that Australia can get on its white steed, ride in and tell people what the solutions are," he says. But, he continues, Australia can be a small player in the Palestinian-Israeli negotiating process in that Australia is seeo by both parties as having a high degree of credibility without a particular ax to grind, and with an understanding of the points of view of both parties. To underline this he points out expressed unqualified support for same token Australia supports the Israel's right to exist within secure that Australia has always and recognized borders. By the Palesunians' right to self-determination and possible statehood.

Ambassador Peter Rogers: It would be misleading to suggest that Australia can get on its white steed, ride in and tell people what the solutions are.

But when all's said and done, it's ool up to Australia or any other country to tell Israel and the Palestinians what to do, says Rogers. "But it is up to Australia to say: 'It's not easy but stick with it because in this process you should continually ask yourselves what are the alternatives?

Rogers is quick to point out that "Australia has put its money where its mouth is. It's important that a country distant from the scene supports and encourages what they do. We have provided financial underpinnings to the Palestinian economy," by way of a Aust$20 million gift to be put into health, education and peace building. Australia is also heavily involved in the Palestinian legal sector, based on the belief that whatever the final stage of the Palestinian entity, the Palestinians are served well by having a comprehensive and comprehensible legal system. "Israel is also served by that," observes Rogers.

The Australian effort in this field is spearheaded by Marcus Einfeld, a Federal judge and a Jewish community activist who is chairman of Australian International Resources, a non-government organization which brings together key people from Australia's legal community to help bring about the rule of law in the developing world.

While Australia has no pretension about being the US or the EU in the financial and the political sense, it will continue to do what it can to demonstrate its support for the peace process, "because whatever happens here has a ripple effect which goes around the world and we can't get away from it. You can't be an ostrich when it comes to the Middle East."

DURING HIS three-year stint in Israel, Rogers, a diplomat-turned-journalist-turned-diplomat found that he was often intellectually challenged by the range of conflicting opinion. But other than that, three aspects of his Israel experience will remain uppermost in his mind. One is the tunnel by the Western Wall, which he toured in June 1994, before the controversial new exit was opened. "It was fascinating because of the smell of history." The second was being present at the Israel-Jordan signing ceremony in the Arava and the third was the day after the Rabin assassination, which Rogers describes as "the toughest day of my professional life." He had known Rabin personally and had been caught up in the trauma which had affected all Israel. Prime Minister Paul Keaung was already in the air on the way to the funeral and Rogers had to make arrangements for his stay. He also had to write something about the assassination "and make sense of something insensible."

He recalled that when Australian Foreign Minister Gareth Evans was here in July 1995, he had a good meeting with Rabin in which he told the late prime minister, "I can see I'm talking to the converted." Rabin's reply was, "You're talking to the committed, not the converted." It's a quote that Evans has frequently used to illustrate that Rabin had no illusions.

Today is Australia Day, but Rogers won't be hosting any gala affair. "I have to account to the Australian taxpayer," he says by way of explanation. "His limited funds are used on focusing on something of more specific interest to Australia.

He hopes to return here as a tourist - not to Herzliya where he has been living but to Jerusalem, "which is one of the most remarkable places in the world."

THEN AND THERE

German philosophers ponder an enigma wrapped in a tallit saves Jews from persecution, while the lack of enlightenment leads to antisemitism, is simply not true.

Prof. Yirmiyahu Yovel, who is professor of philosophy at the Hebrew University and the New School for Social Research in New York, is emphatic about this in his study of the German 19thcentury philosophers Friedrich Hegel and Friedrich Nietzsche (Hida Afela , "Dark Riddle," Schocken Publishing House, 283 pp). Yovel, who is also chairman of the Spinoza Institute in Jerusalem, often gives vent to his views on current affairs.

For Hegel, Jews were an unfathomable enigma. According to his theory, they should have disappeared after they bad accomplished their role in history by giving birth to Christianity. However, he acknowledged their presence as individuals who had overridden their historical significance, and recommended to bestow on them normal civic rights.

Nietzsche, who loathed Christianity, disparaged the Jewish "high priests" who lived in Palestine during the Second Temple period because their teachings had eventually led to the emergence of Christianity. But he praised in highest terms the founders of Jewish religious thought before them; and he held in bonor the Jews of the Diaspora, whose particular historic experience, he claimed, should be used in promoting the "New European Man."

For Friedrich Hegel (left) Jews were an unfathomable enigma;

that the emergence of "modern Jews" may result in the annihilation of Jewish identity as such and many an assimilated Jew in his time, and later, clearly sided with Nietzsche's views. They aspired to period when nationalism was taking shape, Yovel says. Nietzsche detected "brutishness" in Teutonic nationalism, while Hegel was rather ironical about patrionism. But both grew up inan anti-Jewish atmosphere, and changed their outlook only late in life. Most 19th-century Germans strongly disliked all foreigners. Some liberal intellectuals did profess patronizing feelings towards Jews, but urged them to change their ways.

Christian Wilbelm Dohm, a close friend of Moses greatest philosophers of rationalism. lent regular support to anti-Jewish feelings; while Nietzsche, the antidefended the Jews, and encouraged them to play an active role in building a viable society. Nietzsche is considered "right-wing" because he despised democracy, and some of his unerances were balm to rightists' ears when taken out of context. Prof. Yovel is baffled, and not a little revolted, by the fact that fascists, from Mussolini (and even Hitler) to this day brand Nietzscheism as a sort of intellectual nobility. And he is equally perplexed by modem writers who discover leftist attitudes in Nietzsche.

Nietzsche wielded a powerful influence on many Jewish intellectuals - Max Nordau, young Martin Buber, youthful Chaim Weizmann, among others, remarks Yovel. Naturally, the Zionists took note of Nietzsche's flouring of tradition which they associated with "talmudic" tradition, and which they boped to "cure" by instilling some of the "vitality" which they had read in Nietzsche's writing.

At a stormy century's distance from the philosophers one wonders if Europe is due for a change

Every dog has his way

By D'YORA BEN SHAUL

Te are very aware of the vast differences in intelligence and aptitude of people, so it is strange that we tend to think of dogs as being a homogeneous mass lacking any individuality. In fact, dogs vary in their nature about as much as their human companions do. Some differences are hereditary, others are a product of their environment.

For example, some breeds are easier to train than others. A friend who over the years successfully trained several German shepherds and a Labrador retriever, now has a basset hound, which he is finding extremely hard to train. He wondered whether bassets are less intelligent than shepherds and retrievers, or whether he needs to use different training methods.
When we talk about the ordinary obedience training that we usually give the family dog, we too often confuse trainability or what pro-fessionals call "adaptability intelligence" with overall intelligence. That's a serious mistake.

Dog breeds have been developed over the centuries for different purposes. Shepherds several hundred years ago did not know anything about genetics, but they knew that certain things in man and animal were, so to speak, "in their blood." They knew that a good herding bitch usually produced pups that were good herders. They also knew that if the sire was also a good herder, the pups would be good herders. So, these early breeders selected their stock carefully and produced fine, reliable herding dogs. The same was true of sportsmen, who knew that good gun dogs produce good gun dogs. Other breeds were being developed such as hounds that hunted in packs, terriers that chased down their prey and guard breeds that were chosen for their ability as good protectors of place and property. It comes, then, as no great surprise that dogs bred for complicated duties such as keeping control over a herd of sheep have a different attitude toward following human commands. Some breeds really didn't need human input while others were particularly attuned to the commands of a human companion. In general, herding breeds are probably the most easily trained to follow human direction and they are only slightly, if at all, superior to good retrievers and other specialized gun dogs. The guard breeds - such as Doberman pinschers and rottweilers - also excel at accepting obedience training.

On the other hand, most terriers and pack-hunting hounds are harder chances were even higher that the to train. This does not mean they are less intelligent, only that they have a personality that is less attuned to accepting human direction.

There are also differences between individual dogs within the same breed. Almost any dog can be trained, but some require more patience than others. Some are brighter or quicker than others.

Overall intelligence in dogs can be influenced by the same things that influence people. Just as happens with bumans, some dogs are retarded because they did not get enough oxygen at birth. Other cases are due to prenatal conditions and some are of unspecified origin. In any case, a few will be completely untrain-

It all means you should treat each dog as a complete individual, and not according to preconceived notions about breed.

ANOTHER ISSUE Ben-Yair raised is that an amnesty can be Due to a layout error in Friday's Jerusalem Post, two features that traumatic for the victim. A narion-

Gutnick, one of the primary patrons of the settlement there. are a fact of life. If you frustrate them, there won't be peace. They will agitate; peace is two-way especially when you are talking about one of our four holy cines. The solution, he says, is to begin immediately building in the Jewish part of Hebron. "We want to see concrete moves in Hebron so that the people there should not be despondent," Gumick says, Gutnick, who met with Netanyahu on Wednesday, says he will continue donating to the settlement unless the prime minister tells him to stop. This, he admits, is unlikely. "I have been encour-aged by the prime minister on many occasions [to build in Hebron]," Gumick says. "He wants building to take place in Hebron.... If he would say he doesn't want me to invest there, I won't. But I don't believe he would say this."

The "good for the Jews" cam-paign that Gutnick launched was not the first controversial publicrelations campaign he has bankrolled. He was also a key figure behind Habad's "Prepare yourself for the messiah" campaign a few years ago. That campaign, he says, was done at the behest of the rebbe, Lubavitcher to make people aware of the messiah but not as an attempt to claim that he himself was the messiah.

This campaign snowballed, however, and went from "prepare for the messiah" to the claim while Schneerson was alive - that he was the messiah and then to the claim that exists on the fringes of Habad today that the rebbe is still the messiah, even though he has been dead for nearly three Gutnick is adamantly opposed to this claim. "There are a lot of said: They commit crimes because "they don't expect to be caught." An across-the-board reduction also makes more sense than the solution adopted for Israel's 30th and 40th birthdays, which was simply to grant individual pardons on a wider scale, he said. Setting up committees to peruse all the case files, he explained, "tends to duplicate or replicate the decisionmaking processes of both the judges and the release committees [parole boards]."

SHOULD ISRAEL LET ITS PRISONERS GO?

Sheleff also said a modest amnesty was not a bad idea in principle. Even the studies cited by Ben-Yair showed that 25% of the people pardoned in 1967 stayed clean, so for those people the amnesty was a good idea by to weed out recidivists. However, he added, there are several complicating factors this year. One is the suspicion that the primary goal of an amnesty would be to help coalition MKs such as Shas's Aryeh Deri and Raphael Pinhasi escape prosecution. As soon as such a suspicion exists, he any standard, he said. What is needed is more careful checking said, an amnesty must be avoided. Another complicating factor is the peace process. If the government accedes to PA Chairman Yasser Arafat's demand for additional releases of Palestinian prisoners, this would create pressure to amnesty Israeli prisoners as welt, he said. Conversety, the government might want to avoid a general amnesty. Whether or not there is a general amnesty, Sheleff strongly advocated that the government at least do one thing: Review the sentences handed down to all past murderers, in light of a new law allowing judges to give murderers less than a life sentence in certain cases.

"This creates terrible discrimination between someone tried in 1993 and someone tried in 1996," Sheleff noted.

Despite the strong opposition of many jurists, however, there are circumstances in which almost all legal experts agree that a general amnesty is justified: As means of national reconciliation after a civil war, for instance, or if circumstances or the law have changed in such a way that certain acts are no longer crimes. This, for instance, was the theoretical justification for Israel's large-scale release of Palesunian prisoners in the wake of the Oslo Accords, Sebba noted. Kremnitzer noted that the issue of changed circumstances could have been one of the reasons for the 1949 amnesty as well: Many of those in jail at the time were convicted by British courts and judges, whose decisions were not necessarily respected by the newly independent country. Whatever the government ultimately decides about a 50thanniversary aninesty, it will have company in the world. Sebba noted that anthesties are generally eschewed in the Anglo-Saxon legal tradition, but are very common in continental Europe. "It's almost routine [in Europe]," he said. "Every year or two, on every little excuse, they'll have a modest annesty."

However, it is also possible 10 draw a less pleasant analogy. Sheleff, for instance, noted that aninesties are especially common in undernocratic countries, where rulers often like giving their people "candies of this son" to buy their loyalty.

Ben-Yair put this idea even more strongly. The absolute ruler [issued amnesties] to demonstrate his power and buy the people's affection, demonstrating in the process that he held men's lives and freedont in his hands," he wrote.

Patriots pulling for the AFC

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - The New England Patriots have a high-powered offense, a hot defense and a coach with a perfect Super Bowl record. They also have an excellent chance of continuing an American Football Conference tradition of getting routed in the big game.

That's because the Green Bay Packers have the most productive offense and stingiest defense in the NFL and they match up very well with New England in two key areas: receivers and secondary.

Those positions easily could determine the outcome of today's game. With two-time most valuable player Brett Favre throwing to a deep receiving corps and two versatile backs, the Packers can be overpowering. With those weapons operating against a mediocre secondary, the Packers could be dancing into the end zone

"If I was a betting man and I didn't know anything about football," Patriots cornerback Ty Law said Wednesday, "I'd bet on Green Bay, too. They scored the most points in the league and we were ranked down near the bottom as a secondary.

"Early in the season, our defense didn't play well enough to deserve respect. Every game we lost, it seemed to be the defense's fault and we took it personally.
"But in the second half of the season, we've come oo. We've given up how many points in the last five games (62), and only nine in the playoffs. I know what is going on in our locker room and with our defense."

What's been going on is impressive, particularly with the big plays provided by defensive backs Willie Clay, Otis Smith, Lawyer Milloy and Law in the playoffs. But those plays came against lessaccomplished performers, not against Favre and his coterie. Not against a group that has scored 24 or more points in winning its last seven and has at least 30 points in the last five games.
In addition, Green Bay's running game has become fearsome recently. In the NFC title game, Edgar Bennett rushed for 99 yards and Dorsey Levens got 88.

"With this running game, it's going to be extremely hard to slow this offense down," said Antonio Freeman, Green Bay's leading receiver. "We already throw the ball extremely well." But the Patriots seem well-equipped to handle the run after holding Jerome Bettis and Natrone Means to 43 yards each in the postseason. It's in the air that they are particularly vulnerable. Smith, for instance, has a knack for being around the ball - and for being beaten deep. Milloy is a rook-ie, Law is in his second year. And Patriots receiving group that isn't position. They will double-team the pass rush, with the exception of used to such physical opposition sometimes, but you have to find

England still alive in NZ Test

Lefthander Stephen Fleming confirmed himself as New Zealand's new premier batsman with a maiden Test century against England at Eden Park yesterday, but the visitors' hopes were kept alive with a spirited comeback.

Fleming's 129 anchored New Zealand's first innings of 390 after the bome team had been sent in by England captain Mike Atherton in the first cricket Test.

When bad light brought stumps forward by 11 overs, England had responded impressively to be 123 for one, with Alec Stewart in fine touch on 65 and Atherton on 48. Fleming is playing his 23rd Test.

His previous 38 innings had produced 10 half centuries and there have been huge expectations that Fleming would come through as the heir-apparent to the recently retired Martin Crowe as New Zealand's premier batsman.

Yesterday, he showed his class in his 254-ball innings, which included 1g fours and one six.

Starting the day on 58, with Chris Cairns for company and New Zealand 233 for five, the pair added 118 for the sixth wicket. Effortless driving was the hall-mark of Fleming's innings before he was last man out, smartly caught and bowled by Dominic Cork. Fleming hit 92 against India on his Test debut at Hamilton, but despite that early promise, the New Zealand 1st innings

South Africa-Zimbabwe Zimbabwe opener Grant Flower scored a solid 90, but the rest of his side fell to a powerful South African attack led by Allan Donald in their day-night cricket international.

The visitors finished their innings at 211 all out in 48.5 overs, with fast bowler Donald seizing four wickets and captain Hansie Cronje two for South Africa.

Flower had a confident innings, scoring to all parts of the field in batting for more almost three hours. He reached his ninth international half century in a oneday match in only 72 deliveries, including five boundaries.

His next 40 runs came off only 54 balls with three more boundaries before a Donald delivery induced him to chip a shot to Andrew Hudson.

Zimbabwe got little production from its other batters, with Paul Strang racking up 39 runs off 41 balls before getting bowled by a Donald delivery. The other nine batsmen combined for only 71 runs as Zimbabwe discarded caution in seeking a big score in its allotted 50 overs.

Wimbledon ties United on late goal

LONDON (AP) - On a Saturday of upsets and surprises in England's FA Cup, Manchester United was held to a 1-1 draw in a fourth-round match with Wimbledon when the Dons' Robbie Earle scored in secondhalf injury time, just seconds after Paul Scholes had put Manchester

United ahead in the 89th. The draw forces a February 4 replay in the FA Cup fourth round and keeps Wimbledon in the hunt for the triple - the league title, and both English cup titles.

By a quirk of the schedule, Wimbledon returns Wednesday to play at Manchester United's Old Trafford stadium in a league game. United is No. 2 in the league standings, two points behind Liverpool. Wimbledon is

No. 5, eight points off the pace. United seemed safely through yesterday -coaxing 55,000 people at Old Trafford into a premature celebration - when Scholes scored on a header off a cross from Eric

Cantona But Earle got the equalizer in injury time, jumping high to head in an Alan Kimble free kick to beat a diving United goalkeeper

Peter Schmeichel. On an afternoon of some unexpected results, the biggest shock was probably the 1-1 draw that semi-professional Woking of the Vauxhali Conference managed against Premier League Coventry in a third-round game. This draw also forces a replay.

aiready," she told reporters. The victory will take Hingis into second place in the world rankings behind Steffi Graf and the new champion predicted she would soon dethrone Germany's queen of tennis.

Why not? Only an injury could hold me away from that right now," she said.

Hingis raised her arms in triumph, saluting the standing ovation from the Melbourne Park crowd before running across the court to embrace her mother and coach, Melanie.

The former Czechoslovak champion, weeping tears of joy, had clambered down from the stands to share in her daughter's remarkable triumph.

-At 16 years and three months, Hingis becomes the youngest singles champioo at a major championship since long-skirted 15-yearold amateur Lottie Dod won Wimbledon in 1887 - before Grand Slams were invented.

State Cup produces just one suprise

By DEREK FATTAL and ORI LEWIS

Only one underdog made it through to next phase of the State Cup following the 8th round of matches played over the weekend. Second Division leaders Hapoel Ashkelon took the scalp of National League representatives Ironi Rishon Lezion with a convincing 3-1 victory on Friday. Apart from this one result the Cup cinderellas fared badly with all 15 other matches going io favor of the seeded top-flight chubs.

The real minnows all put on respectable shows. Hapoel Yehud only conceded two goals against Betar Jerusalem, as did Bnei Sakhnin away to Maccabi Herzliya, while Maccabi Ma'aleh Adumim battled effectively against Hapoel Taiba for most of their match.

Extra time was needed in just one game, with Zafririm Holon eveotually ending 3-1 winners against Maccabi Acre on Friday.

Bapoel Yehud 0

Betar Jerusalem 2

Betar wasted little time in getting its first goal, with Eli Ohana the supplier in the 11th minute. From then on it was uphill for the Betaris until Ohana found the net again in the 74th minute. In between the two goals Hapoel not only weathered repeated waves of Betar attacks bul also managed to Impuster its own respectable sorties around Itzik Kornfein's goal. Maccahi Ma'aleb Adumim 0

The gap between the fifth division and the National League began to tell in the final quarter of the game as the home side began to show signs of severe fadgue. The Taibans took quick advantage with Valery Korenchuk scoring the first in the 70th minute. An own goal by Ma'aleh Adumim central defender Menashe Ben-Or five minutes later signaled defeat for the team. Bajak Ouda convened from the spot late in the game to give Taiba the final goal.

Ironi Ashdod 0 Hapoel Tel Aviv 1 Naor Galili had a shot clear off the

but the team faltered close to goal.

One cause for concern are the generally low attendances recorded at virtually all the games.

Despite a two-week layoff for in the National League the fans generally kept away from the turn-

The next round of matches is due to be played on March 29.

Betar Jerusalem has generally steamrollered its way to victory this season, but found Hapoel Yehud a more determined opponent than most al Bloomfield Stadium yesterday.

came to an end with this match. The 200 Hapoel fans who bothered to travel to Ashdod to bid farewell will have been as relieved as Sinai at the final result.

Nissim Avitan scored the only goal of the match on the 30minute mark just after Ashdod's line by Guy Sharabi. Alon Hazan's dismissal in the 55th minute increased Ironi's grip on the game

Following an 83rd-minute miss by Arik Shriki it began to look like Ashdod would never score the equalizer that it rightly deserved. The team's misfortune was complete when Galili was fouled in the area in the 89th minute but Marian Keleptano failed 10 convert the penalty.

Bnei Yehuda 3 Maccabi Kiryat Gat 2

This was a fairly even game with Kiryat Gat giving the Hatikva Quarter side more trouble than it bargained for. Nissim Mizrhia opened the way for Alon Mizrahi to edge Bnei Yehuda ahead in the 13th minute, but Ofir Alkobi leveled during injury time in the first

The Bnei Yehuda captain scored again from a penalty in the 53rd minute and Avi Tikva put the hosts 3-1 ahead in the 70th minute. Kirvat Gat did not take matters lying down and a riposte two minutes later by Oren Dayan from 16 meters out made for a tense finish that saw the National League side hang on to its lead and so earn a place in the draw for the next

Hapoel Petah Tikva 2 Upper Nazareth 1

A gutsy display by the under-dogs saw Shai Hess put in some hard work in the Petah Tikva goal early in the game. The Petah Tikvans went ahead from a 24th minute penalty converted by Motti Kakkon, and Yaniv Ofri made it 2-0 before the interval.

The visitors never capitulated and Petah Tikva had to weather some harrowing moments after Oren Muharer pulled one back for Nazareth in the 66th minute.

Betar Tel Aviv 1 Hapoel Kfar Sava 2 Only 150 supporters tumed up at the Gaon Stadium for this fixture, which brought in gale receipts of just NIS 1,100. Betar defender David Herschlikovitz lost possession in the 23rd minute and paid the price as Nir Reichman took full advantage to whack the ball home. Four minutes into the second balf Betar's leading scorer Carlos Perot tied the scores but a Gabi Sapir pass to Reichman 14 min-utes before time allowed Reichman to steer in the goal that spelt victory for the Sharon outfit. Maccabi Herzliya 2

Bnei Sakhnin 0 The 10p-placed side from the Third Division North put on a respectable display but never made its presence count in front of the Maccabi goal. Bnei Sakhnin goalkeeper Moto Azulai was beaten twice in the game, first by Herzliya's llan Bechar just past the quarter hour of play, and then halfway through the second half by Oleg Neduda.

Maccabi Haifa 5

Hapoel Kiryat Shmona 1 The Haifaites went to town in the last four minutes of play wheo Amir Turjeman came out of hibernation to make two goals and then score a third. Prior to this the northern visitors had succeeded in making life uncomfortable for their hosts when Micha Avigezer had reduced Haifa's two-goal lead in the 71st minute. Kiryat Shmona's Jackie Sojum was man-of-the-match and on yesterday's showing is likely to be snapped up by a National League

> Hapoel Jerusalem 3 Hapoel Hod Hasharon 0

Hod Hasharon's hopes of knocking the Jerusalemites out of the cup came to naught after a good effort by the Fourth Division side which was led by player-coach Avi Scharf, son of the national team coach. A 44th minute penalty by Michel Dayan and two secondhalf goals by Yair Assayag and Assi Tubi did the damage.

Maccabi Tel Aviv 4 Hapoel Bat Yam 2

The holders kept on course to retaining the cup with an unim-pressive win over Second Division promotion hopefuls Bat Yam. Maccabi's goals came from Nir Klinger, Avi Nimni, Arik Hengali and Noam Shoham.

Hapoel Ashkelon 3 Ironi Rishon 1

The only non-National League side through to the last-16, Hapoel Ashkelon is surely getting a taste of what it will be like to play with the big boys next season. Sagi Eini with two goals and Eran Prizant scored for the home side. Risbon's consolation effort came from the feet of Moshe Sabag.

Ironi Ramat Hasharon 0 Hapoel Beersbeba 3

Russo, Holtzman and Sharon Avitan sent the Third Division side back to the drawing board and another try next year.

Maccabi Petah Tikva 1 Maccabi Netanya 0 Ofer Shitrit's lone goal was the difference in this match, and Netanya will have to look to the Second Division for success this Maccabi Jaffa 0. Hapoel Haifa 1 Haifa-left it late before getting the winner, from Hisham Zuabi in the 78th minute.

Maccabi Acre 1 Zafririm Holon 3

This was the only game which required extra time to be settled. Acre took the lead early through Shai Harel, Victor Moroz equalized after missing a penalty and Moshe Kabeda (98th minute) and Oren Nissim (106th) secured Holon's win.

Hapoel Beit She'an 5

Rodman: I'll play for free

CHICAGO (AP) - Dennis Rodman apparently has taken some of President Bill Clinton's advice to heart, even vowing to play some games for free.

Clinton, in a televisioo interview aired Thursday, encouraged Rodman to be a better role model. Rodman, suspended without pay for 11 games after kicking a courtside cameraman that he was thrilled that the president is a fan.

WALL STREET REPORT

Stocks continue slide

NEW YORK (Reuter) - Stocks tumbled for a Exchange third consecutive day Friday as inflation fears sent blue-chip shares on a rollercoaster ride and pushed long-term interest rates higher.

As fears of rising interest rates mounted, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 59.27 points to end the week at 6.696.48, down nearly 200 points from its record close of 6,883.90 on Tuesday.

The index was off 136.62 since last Friday, making it the first full week this year in which

CURRENCY REPORT

Dollar down vs. yen

NEW YORK (AP) - The dollar vaulted over the 120-yen barrier for the first time in nearly four years Friday then dropped, hurt by fear that Japan's central bank was selling dollars to defend the yen.

The dollar retreated against other major currencies due to profit-taking on the U.S. currency's sharp rise over the past week and on news of higher inflation in Germany.

After initially climbing, the dollar ended the day at 119.00 yen in New York, down from 119.47 yen Thursday.

The dollar also fell to 1.6284 marks, down from 1.6366. The pound cost $1.6308, up from $1.6292.

Music lovers in the north can enjoy Lynn Harrell playing Shostakovich's Second Cello Concerto with the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra under Semyon Bychkov, who also leads the orchestra in Richard Strauss's Also. Sprach Zarathustra and Haydn's 44th Symphony, tonight through Tuesday at the Haifa Auditorium (8:30),

The chamber-music series at the Rubin Museum in Tel Aviv continues tomorrow (8:30 p.m.) with songs by Heinrich Heine set to music by Schumann performed by Dan Eninger and David Sebba, two baritone singers who will accompany one another on the piano.

HELEN KAYE

When he talks to Bess (Riki Guy), Sportin' Life (Ofer Gelbrun) speaks Hebrew, but when he opens his mouth to tell her "There's a train leavin' for New York," he sings in English. In honor of the Gershwin centennial, the Jerusalem Academy of Music and Dance presents Porgy and Bess, directed by Assaf Levin and conducted by Aharon Harlap. Tonight, in the Wise Auditorium on the Givat Ram campus at 8:30 p.m. Free.

 EMMA - Against formidable odds. Douglas McGrath has managed to create yet another delightful and intelligent cinematic rendition of a Jane Austen novel. And be'a done it with his own gentle, comedic touch, infusing punch and spirit to the prim, early 19th-century courtship rituals described in the book. His approach to the material is playful, at once theatrical and rather breathless in its forward march, much like the heroine herself. Played splendidly hy Gwyneth Palrow, this Emma Woodhouse fills the screen with such a complex blend of snooty petulance and bumbling good will that we can't help but be enchanted. Also with Toni Collette and Jeremy

Rene Russo stars in the thriller 'Ransom.' (Lorey Schastian)

Northam. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

 RANSOM - Ron Howard's kidnapthriller isn't especially subtle or innovative, but it does exert a grim sort of fascination. It's like a TV crime drama one knows is crummy yet can't switch off: even though they're cardboard cutouts, the characters are bogged down in a predicament that we want, and at a certain point need, to see resolved. Howard's direction is clean, crisp and unfussy, and while Ransom is certainly darker than his previous films, it's propelled hy the same taut melodramatic impulse and old-fashioned star power that pushed those movies forward. Mel Gibson and Rene Russo star as the wealthy New York couple whose son is snatched. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without an adult.)

1/2 SECRETS AND LIES - The winner of the Palme d'Or at the 1996 Cannes film festival, Mike Leigh's latest movie is an eminently watchable, stylistically unremarkable characterdriven melodrama. It's the story of Cynthia, a miserable middle-aged factory worker (played wrenchingly hy Brenda Blethyn) whose bleak existence takes a nim for the hrighter with the sudden reappearance of the grown daughter, a black woman, she gave up for adoption as an infant (the poised Marianne Jean-Baptiste). The picture is packed with fine performances and reflects Leigh's usual exacting, and often sharply comic eye for class and character nuance. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance strongly advised.)

Sharansky off for Russian visit

Eleven years after his release from the Soviet Gulag, Natan Sharansky returns to Russia tonight for The minister of industry and trade will lead a delegation of Israeli industrialists on a four-day trip aimed at boosting trade between the two countries. He will also be accompanied by his wife and mother, who will share with him the bittersweet sentiments of a visit to the land in which Sharansky, then a young computer programmer, became the most famous Jewish dissident known to the West.

After being convicted of high treason for his efforts to win the freedom of Jews to emigrate to Israel, Sharansky spent nine years in prison and labor camps, much of the time in solitary confinement. He closed to press coverage.

was released in February 1986 in an East-West swap that also included the exchange of spies.

In an interview with The Jerusalem Post last year, Sharansky said that if he visited Russia be would want to visit his father's grave, which he had never been to, and to see his KGB file. It is not known whether he will do either on his current trip.

Although much of his time will be devoted to meetings with Russian officials, including Deputy Prime Minister Vladimir Portov, he will also meet with former comrades. The morning before his return home he is to visit the notorious Lefortov Prison in Moscow, where the KGB interrogated him and he was incarcerated for a period. A large press contingent will be accompanying Sharansky, but he bas indicated that much of his private itinerary will be

Barak conditionally supports Palestinian state

PARIS - MK Ehud Barak, a candidate for Labor Party chairman, declared that he supports the establishment of a Palestinian state under certain conditions and that only the Palestinians should decide the political character of such a state.

Barak, on a private visit to France, said at a news conference in Paris on Friday that Israel has to accept the existence of another sovereign power west of the Jordan River in order to avoid becoming an apartheid state or a new Bosnia.

However, he listed several conditions for this acceptance: Jerusalem will remain Israel's eternal capital; no foreign army will be deployed west of the Jordan River, and the permanent agreement will assure that most of the settlers remain under Israeli sovereignty.

Barak stressed that Palestinians would define the political nature of their state.

"We should prefer a Palestinian-Jordanian confederation, but we are not in a position to dictate it. If we try to do so, we will find ourselves cooperating only with one side, and that will be perceived as patronizing or plotting." Barak said.

As to peace negotiations with Syria, Barak called on the government to accept UN Resolution 242 and the land for peace principle, as well as consider the American report on the negotiations with Syria that took place under the previous government.

It [the Likud government] should not commit itself to all that was agreed, but it can not go back to point zero," Barak argued.

He stressed that without renewing the peace talks with the Syrians, Israel could start the countdown towards a new war. "A limited scale eruption could happen soon, a major collision could take place later, we will kill thousands of our children and return to the negotiating table with exactly the same positions," Barak

Ben-Menahem endorses Barak

By MICHAL YUDELMAN

Labor MK Eli Ben-Menahem, a led by MK Haim Ramon. announced his support last night for MK Ehud Barak for the party leadership. Ben-Menahem is the third member of this group, after MKs Yael Dayan and Haggai Merom, to transfer his allegiance from MK Yossi Beilin, who is also running for leadership and is a member of the group, to Barak.

A prominent member of the Knesset's social lobby, Ben-Menahem will be bringing the dowry of "social causes" to the partnership with Barak. Until now Barak's image was mainly security-oriented and it is not clear what his social positions are.

"I decided to go with Barak, because our first object is to win the elections and I think Barak is the only candidate who can attract votes from the right wing. As a resident of Kfar Shalem, I know that Barak is accepted and supported by people of all parties, as Menahem said.

Ben-Menahem said "it took me time to declare my allegiance because of Ramon, who is a soul mate. As long as he didn't say whether he was running, I kept quiet and I would have supported him, although I believe only Barak can win. When Ramon decided not to contend, it made it easier for which is very important to me."

He added that "Barak is experipast the public knows nothing

Summer time may be shortened

The cabinet on Friday authorized Interior Minister Eli Suissa to pre-pare a bill to shorten the period this year during which summer time will be in effect.

The bill will be presented to the Ministerial Legislation Committee. However, the cabinet secretary's office issued a statement saying that summer time this year "will be as close as possible to the length it was MK Yossi Sarid (Meretz) said Friday he hoped the Knesset would manage to block any move to shorten summer time. Sarid said the cabinet's decision was another which is not in the public's interest, but rather aimed at the small, demanding haredi community.

If the government succeeds in reducing the hours of light, it will succeed in increasing the hours of darkness, and there is no doubt that for this government and its actions, darkness is preferable, Sarid said. Itim
